OPI CARES

Since 2006 OPI has reformulated its entire line of Nail lacquers, Nail Treatment to eliminate DBP(dibutyl phthalate) and Toluene.

Formaldehyde has never been an ingredient in OPI Nail Lacquers. The levels of formaldehyde are more than four times lower than the safe levels established by U.S. Food and drug administrator. In fact according to a study conducted under the auspices of the California authorizes, the levels of formaldehyde even in Nail salons, are no higher than those found in many common workplace. OPI continues to search for effective alternatives to formaldehyde. We want to assure you that OPI is committed to the safety of our consumers and of Beauty professionals and emphasize that we have always taken the necessary steps to ensure safety standards. Through improving our formulas we continue in our tradition of supplying our customers with safe, effective, innovative products that promise beautiful results. In addition, as the world leader in professional nail care, OPI is proud to help lead the industry in transitioning to these newer, "greener" formulas. OPI has been dedicated to our consumers and to beauty Professionals and their well being since our inception in 1981. We continue that promise of caring and commitment to safety now and into the future with every product we make, every nail we touch every day. And for an overall view of OPI as a company in terms of safety, quality, control, commitment to excellence and giving something back.
